The result of the post mortem examination appended showed that the secret cause of his death was a cerebral complication, the chief factor in which was a tumor in the brain. A footnote suggested that this abnormal growth had probably been caused by a fall.

Perhaps it was because he watched with a new idea in his mind, but it was the very next day, when Lamar renewed his observations at the bedside of the patient in Ballavoine place, that he detected the spasmodic symptoms for the first time. The result was that he became

In the second case there would be the native shrewdness of a novice whose heart was fired with an anthusiasm, and whose mind was stimulated by an interest, for the intensity of which Marcy himself was sometimes, in the rare moments when he indulged in self examination, at a loss to account.

While the artist was still debating with himself this problem Miss Maxey came in. She cried out almost before she opened the door:
